THOREAU'S WORKS-THE NOVELS OF MR.

When Mr. Lowell reviewed "A Week on the Concord and Merrimac Rivers," over forty years ago, he anticipated the criticism which has since then been most frequently directed at the hermit of Pond. Of the erudite digressions of Thoreau he said: "They are out of proportion and out of place, and mar our Merrimacking dreadfully. We were bid to a river party—not to be preached at."
To any one who has accepted Thoreau's invitation and explored his old haunts under his own guidance, there is no better comment on the one back to the experience. Allusions to the Hindu dects are made relevant on New-England first place the very presence of these passages in Thoreau's writings is an evidence of naivete, of an unsophisticated habit of mind. It needed a more ace introduced by his "preaching," and it second fact that counterbalances his defect is the urity of Thoreau's natural magic, when it is given free play. His intellectual ruminations are his mannerism. The essential substance of his work has in it the fibre of the untrodden woods. This what is tonic in him, what makes him a constructive force in modern letters. In his most characteristic writing there is the least possible tervention of self-consciousness between his observation and the expression given to the latter. He is a direct, rapidly illuminative interpreter of Although he is always making delicate appeals to the imagination, as when he says, "A sweet briar, apparently, yesterday, giving in that single line a world of meaning, he s his reader in possession of facts, not of emotions, or only of such emotions as spring from enjoyment of facts in themselves "How peculiar is the hooting of the owl," he says, not shrill and sharp like the scream of the hawk, but full, round and sonorous, waking the echoes of the wood." There is no reference here to anagues in the spiritual experience of man; the cry of the owl is freighted with no tones of human, in ospective significance. He gives you simply the note, the personality of the bird. It is, then, unadulterated naturalism, even more than his store of gnomic wisdom and the charm of his individuality, which makes the appearance of a new edition of his works a matter of importance. has not been without a large audience these many years, he has not hitherto been colin such form as Houghton, Mifflin & Co. have just given to his works. The New Riverside Edition is to be completed in ten volumes, of which eight have thus far been published. Brief introductory notes to the various volumes shed bibliographical light on the latter, there are copious indexes, and the last volume is to have a general dex for the set. There will appear also in the final volume some new miscellanies. In the there is a good reproduction of Rowse's crayon of Thoreau in the Public Library of Con rd, and two other portraits are promised for the edition, which is made, it may be added, in the customed simple and serviceable style of the It makes one of the best of Christmas publications, and is a fitting companion to the uniform editions of Hawthorne, Lowell, Emerson and other American writers which this house has brought out. Modern novelists are nothing if not topographical and also ethnographical, and with the rise of the dialect story authors in this country have come to speak in many cases for special districts. Mr. Crawford is unique in going from pole to pole and seeking his characters and scenes now in Bohemia or Italy, and now in New-York. It is more often that we meet a Miss Wilkins or a Miss Jewett reproducing New-England manners, a Miss Murfree describing the sunsets and moonshiners of Tennessee, or a Mr. Cable reviving in works of fiction the life of the Creole South. All Mr. Cable's tales have been republished in a set of five octavo volumes by Charles Scribner's Sons. em over at one time is to be struck more forcibly than ever by the thoroughness and singleness of aim with which this author has devoted himself to his province. In that province he has no rival save Lafcadio Hearn; and the author of "Chita" and "Youma" is, indeed, more to be remembered for the originality and distinction of his art than for the local color in his two most perfect productions. New-Orleans remains Mr. Cable's own familiar ground. He ows the streets, the dwellings and the musicaltongued people who fill them. He has written in these volumes a good deal of the close description which in days to come will be of semi-historical Value. Even the deep-ingrained Latinism of Louisiana must fade before the encroachments of the American genius. When the incisive speech of important biographies."—Boston Journal. patois of the Southern metropolis, "The Grandis-simes" and "Old Creole Days" will be useful documents to the student of racial America.

REAL ESTATE.

BUSINESS AT THE EXCHANGES.

The most important transactions in the real estate mar-set were by private sale, and the increasing number and amount of large transactions show that the tone of the market is daily acquiring strength. No. 8 Warren-st. has long been known as "Stewart's saloon"; it is a five-story long been known as "Stewart's saloon"; it is a five-story building on a full lot. The property stands in the name of Mary J., wife of Theodore L. Stewart, of Denver, Col. It was purchased by Mr. Stewart in December, 1882, Cor 850,009. The property was vesterday sold for $105,009. The property has been leased for a long term.

C. R. Gregor & Son have sold for L. Z. Bach and L. J. McLoughlin the vacant plot, 44.8x102.2, in the north side of Eighty-fourth-st., 100 feet star of Columbus-ave., for immediate improvement, for $39,009. Also for John Yule, the Columbus-ave., for $30,009. Also for John Yule, 100, 5, of a hour $30,009.

No. 236 West Ninety-first-st., a three-story building, 17x 53x100, has been sold by Walker & Lawson to Dr. H. von Gehren for $22,009.

No. 230 West Ninety-first-st., has been sold on private terms.

This is the true and intimate life history of the Swedish soldiert Count Axel Fersen, whose romantle friendship with the lifefated Marie Antoinetts led him gladry to perfit his life again and again in vain attempts at rescue. The here of court tetes in the pamy days of Louis XVI, a soldier in our Revolution and an aide-de-camp at Yorktown, the disvised conclusion of Marie Antoinette in the flight which chief so were chedity at Varennes, the grand marie at of Sweden, and finally the victim of mob tury, killed the a mad day with sticks and choes in Stockholm, make a career to which history offers few counterparts. No. 20 West Ninety-fifth-st, has been sold on private terms.

The auction sales announced at the Trinity Salestoom were not of any very great interest and the most important were adjourned. R. V. Harnett & Co. offered No. 25 East Sixty-second-st., a four-story brick house, on a lot lax160; the plaintiff in the proceedings was the buyer for $28,000. The property is charged for $40,610.

Smyth & Ryan offered two live-story brick flats, on a plot 50x100, situated in One-hundred-and-second-st., as of the Boulevard, being Nos. 212 and 214. They brought $55,183 from S. J. Burby.

At the Liberty Sirect Exchange W. W. Fogg offered on behalf of Frank S. Parker, assignee of George H. Shaffer, common and preferred stock in the Nassau Oyster Company of Patchogue. Mr. Shaffer was an oyster breeder and shipper, but in consequence of the hard times and the failure of the oyster crop he was compelled to suspend and make an assignment. The sale of $5,000 of the bonds of the Central Terminal Warehouse Company was adjourned until December 6, and the other stock sold for nominal prices. Send for a copy (free) of the illustrated holiday number of Appletons' Monthly Bulletin, containing an-nouncements of important new books.

adjourned until December 6, and the other stock sold for nominal prices.

Tim & Co. have sold for Dr. D. V. Galvan the two five-story and basement brownstone apartment-houses, Nos. 154 and 155 West Thirty-fifth-st., 50x00x06.9, between Broadway and Seventh-ave., to Robert P. Zobel for about $87,000. These properties were purchased about two years ago by Dr. Galvan from lowen & Halliday, the builders, for $88,500.
